

Medical Billing Certification Online – M102

300 hours

Medical Billers assemble, organize and evaluate medical records and charts for completeness and accuracy. They ensure that all forms are properly identified, signed, and that all necessary information is in the computer. Once all of the relevant data are correctly assembled, the Medical Billing Specialist then bills the insurance company or Federal Government for the services and goods rendered while treating the patient.

Clearly, the Medical Biller is a vital part of a private practice or hospital environment. The Medical Biller is responsible for making sure payments are made by insurance companies and that cash-flow is maintained. Without this function there is no practice or hospital!

A Medical Billing professional can also be referred to as a Medical Reimbursement Specialist or Health Insurance Specialist.

Medical Billing Certification Means Success!

Certified Medical Billing professionals are in high demand throughout the healthcare industry. In fact, according to Healthcare Jobs.org, Medical Billing is one of the fastest growing opportunities in healthcare. Insurance companies and government agencies are spending more time and money researching and controlling claims fraud, abusive practices and medical necessity issues. Because of this, most companies and practices are looking for employees who are highly trained in the field. And, studies show that Medical Billers are paid accordingly for their skills. The average starting pay for a certified Medical Biller is about $30,000 per year, with experienced Medical Billers making well over $50,000 per year! The CMCP course will take the average student a little over 300 hours to work all the way through to completion.
